

Welcome from the Governor

Dear Friends:

On behalf of the great State of Tennessee, I am pleased to extend a warm welcome to the participants and guests of the 59th Combat Engineer Company's Biennial Reunion.

As we remember the conflict in Vietnam, it is important for each of us to never forget the price of the freedoms we so often take for granted. You have a proud history of service to our country. The United States is certainly indebted to you and all the men and women that served and made great sacrifices.

Tennessee is a state rich in heritage and tradition with much to offer participants and guests of this year's reunion. Tennesseans are famous for "southern hospitality," and all of us are eager to make your experience a memorable one. The City of Nashville has many cultural activities, historic sites, and entertainment possibilities for people of all interests and tastes. As former mayor, I hope you will take time to enjoy this beautiful city and all it has to offer.

Please enjoy your stay in our great state. I wish all participants and guests a rewarding and meaningful reunion.

Warmest regards,
